

VENDOR SIGN UP

Breadcoin is proud to collaborate with 70+ local food vendors to provide meals and connect the community together through food.

By joining Breadcoin, you demonstrate that your business cares about the community. It also provides you with an extra source of revenue.

How Does a Vendor Get Paid?

Each month, a Breadcoin representative will stop by your location to redeem Breadcoins. They will count the number of Breadcoins being redeemed and record the redemption electronically on their phone. Each Breadcoin is redeemed for $2.50. Breadcoin is using Bill.com to directly deposit the money into your bank account.

About Breadcoin Foundation

Breadcoin Foundation is a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization. The Breadcoin token began circulating in Washington, DC area in 2016. It operates in DC, Baltimore, and Harrisburg. The organization was co-founded by Scott Borger, a Ph.D. economist.

*Breadcoin
food vendors are the heart of the network*

Sign up now!

breadcoin.org/vendor-sign-up

 | Breadcoin

HOW BREADCOIN WORKS

Breadcoin is a community food token that provides a meal to those in need with the dignity of choice. Individuals or organizations purchase Breadcoins to be distributed in the community. The coin recipient takes that physical token to one of our participating locations to purchase a meal with each token worth $2.50. This provides the dignity of choice in what, where and when to eat.

The local businesses accept Breadcoins and redeem them for cash. Breadcoin also offers microloans to these participating businesses that are paid back in Breadcoins.

BECOME A MEMBER

Many individuals aren't directly in contact with food insecure households, and therefore, our recurring donors can purchase Breadcoins each month to put them into the hands of trusted local groups.

A recurring donation of $25 puts 10 Breadcoins into your community. Donations have 3x the impact because the money stays local longer. It provides support for local nonprofits, it provides a meal to recipients, and it provides revenue for local businesses.

Sign up to become a member at www.breadcoin.org/membership

WHY USE BREADCOIN

Breadcoin creates a lasting local impact by resourcing community groups, providing food with dignity, and supporting local vendors.

In addition to more than 70 locations, we have caterers and food trucks that can provide a community with mobile food events that can include all who show up and can extend options in food deserts.

Breadcoin is providing more than a meal, it creates hope, builds community, and sustains businesses in underserved areas.

